March into a Fashion Adventure!

Being "adventurous" is not all about climbing mountains and sailing solo across the ocean. Are you brave enough to wear a marabou boa, bell bottom jeans or vintage go-go boots? In our March Edition of Adventure Woman we are discussing what Anna Wintour, the Editor of Vogue, calls, "The fear of fashion" and why it makes so many people, "nervous."

In the Armchair Adventurer we will review the book, Front Row, a biography of Wintour, reputedly the most powerful woman in fashion. We also feature the fashion documentary about Vogue Magazine, September Issue, in our Flicks for Adventure Chicks movie review section. Start your fashion adventure now!

Char Bloom is a real Renaissance woman and a fashionable one at that! Who else on the planet has a custom pink, teal and purple drift boat? She is one of only four women in the world to be a member of the Hyde Boats Pro Staff. Char teaches skiing, snowboarding and fly fishing and generously donates 100% of her teaching and guide income to women's shelters. She is a talented fashion designer and has created a beautiful line of women's fly fishing attire. Whew! Meet Char and see her fabulous fishing photos on our Fishing Tips and Adventures.

Sunny Mays is an entrepreneurial mother who took a great idea public. She designs a fashionable line of reversible bags for every occasion (evening to outdoor). Her bags are fun and as spirited as their namesakes. Check out these phenomenal bags in our Adventure Interview. You can even design your own bag. How cool is that?

Adventure Tip: Do your research. Before you embark on a new adventure check-out the credentials of your outfitter or tour group. Ask for references (and actually contact them), enquire how long they have been in business and clarify how their services meet your expectations. A little effort on the front end helps alleviate hassles on the back end.

Have an adventure story or travel tale to share? Send it our way. We'd love to feature you on AdventureWoman.com!
